

Entire Baruch Estate Will Aid Handicapped

Bernard M. Baruch, financier and advisor to Presidents, disclosed in New York that he plans to will his entire estate for the promotion of physical medicine and rehabilitation, two subjects long close to his heart. As to the size of his fortune, Mr. Baruch smilingly told an interviewer that it "isn't anybody's business," adding, "It's much smaller than you think."

Starting with little money, Mr. Baruch, now 79 years old, acquired a fortune estimated in the millions of dollars before World War I, chiefly through speculation in Wall Street. In the subsequent years he is reputed to have added to it. But he also has given away large sums. He remarked, "I've spent a lot."

The son of Dr. Simon Baruch, Mr. Baruch is one of the chief supporters of the Baruch Committee on Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation. This committee was set up in 1944 with a $1,100,000 gift from Mr. Baruch and with Dr. Frank Krusen, of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., as director. This was one of the few Baruch gifts that was announced publicly. Others were made privately to the committee and to hospitals and research agencies. What their total has reached to date has never been made known.

America's "elder statesman" has also been a leading sponsor and contributor to New York University's present rehabilitation center and to the new one that the university is building.

In recent years, Mr. Baruch has seen dozens of persons who had been regarded as hopeless cripples restored to economic independence as a result of research, prosthetics, special devices and treatments that his benefactions helped make possible. At the time he set up the Baruch Committee he explained that he was prepared "to put Baruch Committee on Physical Medicine and various institutions, but these benefactions have never been made public.

"It's a field very close to my heart," Mr. Baruch said, as he munched butter drops and honey-bundled candies. "I can't think of anything better to do with my money."

He spoke of a girl who was born without legs. "Now she can walk and she's going to make legs for other people," Mr. Baruch said. "You couldn't tell she had ever been handicapped." "I saw people walk who had never walked take their first steps. And they're still taking them."

The great problem, Mr. Baruch said, was to get handicapped people to feel useful to themselves and to the community. "That applies to older folks, too," he said.

Mr. Baruch made a fortune in World War I and, later, by developing mining and industrial companies. It has been estimated at $30,000,000, according to the New York Times.

In recognition of the international influence of his activities in advancing the cause of physical medicine through the committee, honorary membership in the British Association of Physical Medicine was granted to Mr. Baruch during the year. Noting that many members of the British Association on Physical Medicine had received help from the Baruch Committee, Lord Ebor, President of the King and President of the British Association, said in his letter informing Mr. Baruch of this recognition: "The impetus and encouragement your generosity has afforded physical medicine is of international importance."

U.S. Credit To Israel To Build Up Export

The loan which the United States gave Israel, amounting to $20,000,000 in credit to be used for industrial development, with emphasis on building Israeli production for the export trade. The credit granted by the Export-Import Bank as part of $100,000,000 net aid for Israel last January, is to be repaid over a period of fifteen years with interest at 3 1/2 per cent.

Oscar Gass, American economic adviser to the Israeli government, said the money will benefit 250 Israeli manufacturing concerns which need American equipment, materials or services to expand or begin new production. The New York Herald Tribune reported. The firms include private businesses, corporations and co-operatives (which are important in the Israeli economy).

Mr. Gass said that in addition to the $20,000,000 in American government credit, the participating concerns have enlisted or are enlisting some $80,000,000 in private capital for expansion. "For industrial development in the next years," he said, "Israel's major reliance is on private investment."

Products involved in the program of industrial development for export include citrus fruit concentrates, canned foods, wool and cotton textiles, pharmaceuticals and chemicals. A smaller, but substantial, share of the $20,000,000 will be put into new facilities for the manufacture of building materials to help remedy Israel's housing shortage. In the short range, Mr. Gass said, Western and Southern Europe are expected to continue the principal export market, although the intention is to expand trade with the Middle East when political conditions permit.

Mr. Gass said that although Israel has received more aid than any new state has about twice as many people in industry. Herbert E. Gasson, chairman of the bank's board, said, in announcing the credit, that the technical and managerial skills of the people of Israel "should assure in a successful industrial future provided sufficient capital can be obtained."

Israel previously has received from the bank $35,000,000 for agricultural development, $6,000,000 for housing and $13,350,000 for transportation and communication. The remaining $28,700,000 is to be used for further development in these three fields, as well as in additional expansion.

Warns U.S. Jews On Communism

Communism and its ideology must be rejected by Jews in the U.S., Rabbi Philip S. Bernstein of Rochester, N.Y., former advisor on Jewish Affairs to the United States Army in Germany, warned in an address at the biennial national convention of the American Jewish Congress in the Hotel New Yorker, in New York.

Rabbi Bernstein said it had been demonstrated many times that Judaism had no security and no future in Communist-dominated lands. He stressed that the basic philosophy of Communism was hostile to the fundamental precepts of Judaism.

"Recent developments in Soviet Russia and in the satellites demonstrate that Jews do not have dependable security under a Communist dictatorship," he said. "Again and again they are used as scapegoats and are the hapless victims of capricious leadership."

He declared that although Jews in the United States desire peace with Russia and align themselves with progressive forces that seek social justice they must firmly reject Communist ideas and leadership in Jewish life, according to the New York Times. If this is not done, he warned, "all that we have believed in or that has sustained and preserved us, all that would give survival in American significance will be lost."

In outlining the obligations of American Jews toward the U. S., Rabbi Bernstein declared that the American democratic way, with all its imperfections, was the last great hope of mankind. He said that the American Jewish Congress should back a positive program for American Jews, one that would reflect both American democratic institutions and aspirations and positive Jewish values. To Remove "Hard Core" Cases From Germany

Establishment of a $17,500,000 fund to transport 4,000 "hard core" displaced persons and an additional 5,000 members of their families from Germany to Israel was announced at a press conference in the New York offices of the United Jewish Appeal. "Hard core" cases are those displaced persons suffering from blindness, mental affliction, tuberculosis, amputation of one or more limbs and others who have no immediate prospect of being self-supporting.

The program will be financed jointly by the Joint Distribution Committee, an agency getting funds from the U. S. J. A. which will furnish $7,500,000; the Jewish Agency for Palestine, $4,500,000; the government of Israel, which will contribute land and buildings worth $3,000,000, and the International Refugee Organization which will contribute $2,500,000.

The funds already allocated are to carry the program for fifteen months, it was said. Those participating in the press conference were Moses A. Leavitt, executive vice-chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee; Berl Locker, chairman of the executive of the Jewish Agency for Palestine; Dr. Nehum Goldmann, chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency; and Moses W. Beckelman, vice-chairman of the J. D. C.'s European Council.

Mr. Locker described the program as unique in that no country other than Israel would accept such a large number of immigrants with no restrictions based on physical or mental qualifications, says the New York Herald Tribune. Israel has in addition several thousand "hard core" cases from other countries, notably Yemen and neighboring Moslem states.

To meet the influx and to care for the "hard core" immigrants, the U. S. J. A. and the Jewish Agency will build and expand hospitals, homes for the aged and other social institutions. Most of the physicians and other trained personnel necessary to care for the "hard core" cases will be Israeli.

Part of the rehabilitation work is already being carried on in the displaced persons camps in Europe.

"To have sent these handicapped, aged and sick people to Israel without making certain first that they can be properly cared for and helped to re-establish themselves as useful citizens would have been an injustice to them and to the new state whose heroic people have already made extraordinary sacrifices," Mr. Leavitt said. "But to leave them to rot out their days in Germany would be an equal injustice, for they are the people who bear Hitler's deepest wounds."

Of the 4,000 cases, 1,500 are suffering from tuberculosis, and Israel will need at least 1,000 more hospital and convalescent home beds to care for them properly, it was said. Directly in charge of the rehabilitation program will be Charles Passman, who is now in Israel completing arrangements for the transfer.

U. J. A. Calls For Record Sum

The United Jewish Appeal's three-day conference at Atlantic City, N. J., unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon American Jews to contribute $27,455,800 in 1950 to aid immigration and settlement in Israel, rehabilitate Jews overseas and assist refugees in the United States.

The sum is the largest sought by the U. J. A. since it was founded in 1939.

The money, while not set as a specific goal, represents the budgetary requirements of the major agencies for which the U. J. A. raises funds—the United Palestine Appeal, aiding Jews in Israel; the Joint Distribution Committee, aiding Jews in Europe, Africa and elsewhere; and the United Service for New Americans, which helps refugees in the United States. The 1948 goal was $250,000,000 of which $110,000,000 has been raised.

The conference overwhelmingly rejected the concept advanced in some Jewish organizations that American Jews should begin giving greater emphasis to domestic needs such as the building of temples and orphanages at the expense of aid to Jews abroad, says the New York Herald Tribune.

Urges Jews To Drop "Defense Work" For Better Relations Among All

Jewish communities in America have "the permanent obligation" of promoting better relations among all groups in American life, Jacob Blaustein, president of the American Jewish Committee, told 400 Jewish leaders at the annual meeting of the Joint Defense Appeal, in Detroit, Mich.

The Jewish leaders, representing forty-one states, were told by Mr. Blaustein that this "permanent obligation" must enjoy the same measure of support that the Jewish people give to local national and overseas philanthropies.

"For it should be obvious," he asserted, "that the continued stability of American Jewry is essential if we are to maintain our communal life in all its institutional forms, and to assist Jews abroad and in Israel to achieve security for themselves."

The Joint Defense Appeal is the fund-raising arm of the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, both of which are devoted to the betterment of inter-group relations, the combatting of anti-Semitism and the safeguarding of civil liberties.

Mr. Blaustein held that it was no longer sufficient for American Jews to concern themselves exclusively with philanthropic activities, "as essential as they are," but they must take a widespread and active interest in civil, political, economic and religious positions concerning themselves and their fellow-Americans.

The achievement of full democratic rights for all groups "in our society is more complex than the simple act of giving generously to help the needy," the Committee head asserted, adding that "when the fires of racial, religious, and ethnic hatred break out after another war, it is the duty of all groups to unite to control them."

Stressing that the old concept of "defense work" was no longer adequate, Mr. Blaustein said that "the combatting of prejudice calls for a human relations program based on meticulous careful organization, full utilization of resources and the unflinching maintenance of contacts and working relationships with national and other groupings within our population."

"This is the essential fact that we must impress upon the conscience of Jewish welfare funds throughout the country," he continued. "They must recognize that the responsibility of enabling Jews to live in peace and dignity is theirs, too, and they must do their full part in meeting it."

He emphasized that the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Committee must receive the support that will enable them "to continue the kind of program mid-century American democracy requires," pointing out that both groups had programs "now geared to positive action."

Speaking on the panel of "community service," Benjamin R. Epstein, national director of the Anti-Defamation League, said "great strides" in the field of combatting prejudice and discrimination had been made on a regional basis.

Mr. Epstein said that regional groups, familiar with their local problems, were in the best position to "devise appropriate remedial action programs," which affect not only the Jews but the mores of their community "local programs," he said.

Dr. Simon Segal, director of the American Jewish Committee's foreign affairs division, asserted that while there was a feeling of "direct and immediate responsibility" for the relief and rehabilitation of Jews throughout the world, there was almost no realization of equally urgent responsibility for the protection of their civil and economic rights, says the New York Times.

"American Jews have spent hundreds of millions of dollars in Europe for relief and rehabilitation. We have spent very little or none in the United States to help the Jewish community in its own life. It is up to agencies like the AJC and ALC to help organize Jewish communities overseas in a way which will enable them to fight effectively for equality of rights," Dr. Segal said.

Mrs. Caroline K. Simon, member of the New York State Commission Against Discrimination, was a speaker at another panel.

FEDERATED COUNCIL OF ISRAEL INSTITUTIONS

The one hundred and more institutions comprised in the program of the FEDERATED COUNCIL OF ISRAEL exist today due to the support given by our Organization.

The fact alone that His Eminence, Chief Rabbi Isaac M'Levi Herzog, the only authority who governs all the institutions, appeals to all Jewry in North America to support them in enough proof of the importance of the great work the Federated Council has done.

The Israeli Government, together with the Jewish Agency have enough worries to look after the economic, political and religious life in the young Israel Republic. That is why the Federated Council is taking over the supervision and worry connected with the 100 institutions such as Yeshivot, Hospitals, Old Peoples Homes, Orphanages, etc. which would be destitute if not for our great help.

We have sent out tens of thousands of dollars in cash to individual organizations which require our help. That is why it is very important that every Jew in Canada should help the Federated Council in its work. The old people cannot work and they depend upon our support. All Yeshivot and colleges must go on with their work and they, too, must get their support from the Federated Council.

It is interesting that our Chief Rabbi has given his time to look after the institutions. A letter from his private Secretary, M. A.
Abizidek, as quoted at the end of this article, speaks for itself concerning the many shipments the Federated Council in Mon-treil sent out over the last few months.

In Toronto Mr. A. Plonka, 23 Cecil St. has volunteered his services in behalf of our worthy institutions, and we would ask that he be received with courtesy.

Dear Friends,

On behalf of the Chief Rabbi of Israel I desire to express to you the deepest appreciation for your large shipment of food and clothing recently received. These have been duly distributed and allocated in accordance with your instructions and the official individual receipts are being forwarded to you under separate cover.

We have had the pleasure of meeting with your Hon. Secretary Dr. Rosenberg who has had the opportunity of seeing for himself how your aid is distributed to the institutions and the needy talmidei chachomim in the holy city. We feel sure that his first-hand report of the enormous good you are doing in alleviating the poverty of so many worthy poor in the city of Jerusalem will inspire you to renewed efforts and in some small way reward you for your mitzvah of which, we hasten to assure you, there is no greater. We have just been informed that your shipments sent via S.S. Haifa and Errata have arrived and we will have them released within a few days. Never were your shipments more timely as recently hundreds of new immigrants, including many children, have reached Jerusalem and we are clothing and feeding a number of them with your products. They are arriving in increasing numbers from Islamic countries, especially Yemen, and your new shipments coming as they do just before the winter sets in will be doubly welcome.

With the greetings of the Torah and the blessings

Sincerely yours,

Boys And Girls From Slums Change Soon At Lehman Home In French Village

The sleepy little French village of Pouques-Les-Eaux, once a fashionable watering-place, came to life as activity centered around the horseshoe-shaped Splendid Hotel, now known as the Herbert H. Lehman Home, where 150 Jewish boys and girls from the slums and ghettos of North Africa are learning and training for a new life in Israel. The home, operated by Youth Aliyah, is one of 90 child-care centers in Europe supported by the Joint Distribution Committee, with funds received from the United Jewish Appeal.

Cause of all the excitement was the departure to Israel of 58 youngsters and the arrival the same night of a similar number fresh from the North African city of Tunis. Altogether, it added up to more excitement than this little resort town, four hours by train from Paris, had known in a long time. Things started moving Saturday afternoon, when the "graduates," ranging in age from seven to fifteen, lined up in the clothing store, high in the Lehman Home's attic, for a complete set of new clothing — shoes and underwear for the girls, blouses and skirts; for the boys, new trousers and belts.

Then the packing began. Into their makeshift baggage the youngsters put the sum total of their earthly possessions — a few extra sets of underwear and a change of clothing; a couple of sweaters and some socks; their notebooks with the evidence of the Hebrew, Israel geography, and history and arithmetic they had learned at the home; and a few letters from their parents — some still in North Africa, others waiting for their children to join them in Marseille, many already in Israel.

By now it was time for dinner — a real farewell banquet. Leaves and flowers picked from the Lehman Home's broad grounds decorated each table. Then came the dinner: lettuce and tomato salad, with chopped egg, fish and an assortment of delicacies; vegetable soup; pot roast of beef, with lots of potatoes and string beans; long loaves of French bread at each table; and hot tea with cake.

Still to come was a torch-lit flag-lowering ceremony, an impressive gymnastic display on the lawn outside the home and a variety show — chiefly songs and dances — on the improvised stage of a classroom which the youngsters had transformed into a theatre for the occasion.

It was almost midnight when the 150 boys and girls of the Lehman Home were in bed; but this was no night for sleeping. More than a third of the kids, youngsters from the streets of Tunis and Casablanca, Tripoli and Marrakech, were going off for Israel the next day. There were many farewells that had to be said, many rendezvous to be arranged in Israel.

Early next morning the 42-passenger streamlined bus that was to take the youngsters to Marseille, port of embarkation for Israel, arrived on the grounds of the Lehman Home. But before the youngsters could clamber aboard, injections had to be taken, bags had to be loaded on the bus, and breakfast and lunch had to be eaten. In between times, there was always one last hour to do on the wide outdoor porch of the home, one last round of Palestinian songs to sing, one last letter to write.

Finally, after sixty loaves of bread, a crate of apples, eight dozen hard-boiled eggs and a case of caramel candy were loaded on to the bus, the 58 "graduates" of the Herbert H. Lehman Home were off. For many of the youngsters it was a sad parting; some of the children left behind at the home cried as the luckier ones waved goodbye from the bus. But an hour later the tears were forgotten; there were more hours and more songs, more volleyball on the lawn and ping-pong inside. Meanwhile, the director of the home and his staff busied themselves with plans for the new arrivals.

At midnight they came, weary from the long journey. Behind them were the slums of North Africa, the poverty and hopelessness of Jewish life in the Moslem world. That was why their parents had given them over to Youth Aliyah representatives. Marc Bokobza's parents, for instance, had never been able to send their youngster to school, and so their 14-year-old had been able neither to read nor write. Giselle Memoun, 13, was another who had no education. But an older brother was in Israel. He wrote back of the new life there, urging his family to join him. The first step was sending Giselle to a Youth Aliyah training center.

That very morning the youngsters had said goodbye to their parents in Tunis. An air-liner chartered by Youth Aliyah with JDC funds had flown them to Paris, where they boarded the bus for Pouques-Les-Eaux. Now they were 1,000 miles away, tired, hungry, a little afraid. A hot meal was waiting for them in the dining room: cream of celery soup, fried eggs, hot tea. But it was the long loaves of French bread that were most popular. Among the "freshmen" was nine-year-old Dora Hayon. Dora had never tasted soup before and didn't quite know what to do with the eggs. So she ate bread, nearly a whole loaf.

Explained Henry Vajda, director of Lehman Home: "All the newcomers are like this at first. They're not used to this kind of food; and in the beginning you can't talk them into eating it. That's why, when a new group like this comes in, we order 150 loaves of bread a day — one for each child. It isn't long, though, before they eat everything we put in front of them. If you doubt it, take a look at the weight and height charts we keep for each kid."

Next on the schedule was the shower room. But here, too, there were objectors: three boys simply refused to go under and get wet. While few of the youngsters had ever even seen a shower, before long they were shouting the French equivalent of "Come on in, the water's fine!"

Young Mr. Vajda, a Rumanian-born French citizen with degrees in scientific agriculture and agro-

WEINSTEIN-COHEN

The marriage of Rena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cohen, 6017 Waverley Street, to Zelig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Weinstein, 5961 Hutchison Street, took place on Sunday, November 8, at half-past one o'clock, at Chevra Kadisha Synagogue, Rabbi M. She wore a white satin gown, fashioned with a fitted bodice, and a high lace neckline, embroidered with rhinestone and pearl heading; long, tightly-fitted sleeves; and a full skirt, shaping into a train. Her headdress was a crown of white satin, with a fingertip-length tulle veil; and she carried a white Bible, with orchids. Sharon Linda Weinstein, niece of the groom, was flower girl, wearing a long yellow organdy dress, with a matching hat, and carried a muff of variegated flowers. Archie Cohen, brother of the bride, was best man. The ushers were: Sidney Weinstein, Hyman Teisler, Moe Graif, Frederick J. Arshinoff, Irving Gotthell, Bernard Weiner, Alan Cohen, Joseph Klein, Alvin Cohen, cousin of the bride, was junior usher; and Stanley Weiner, cousin of the bride, was ring-bearer. Miss Libby Weinstein, sister of the groom, who was in the wedding procession, wore a long, white taffeta dress, with a corsage of pink roses. The synagogue was decorated with ferns, and seasonal flowers, in variety. The reception for the immediate families was at the groom's home. Mrs. Cohen, mother of the bride, wore a black gown, with pink accessories, and a corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Weinstein, mother of the groom, wore a grey gown, with a lace neckline; a pink feathered hat, and a corsage of roses. The bride and groom left for New York for their wedding trip, the bride travelling in a brown suit, with matching accessories. They are living at 4355 Dupuis Avenue. DOVER-ZABITSKY

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Zabitsky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Zabitsky, 617 Carleton Place, to Martin B. Dover, son of Dr. Harry Dover, of Ottawa, Ont., and the late Mrs. Calla Lecker Dover, took place in Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue, on Sunday afternoon, November 13, Rabbi W. Shuchat and Rabbi M. Lewittes officiating, assisted by Cantor N. Mendelson and Rev. J. J. Fromm. The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her white slipper-satin gown was fashioned with crystal bead-trimmed lace yoke and sleeves, and a scalloped skirt, which had inserts of lace and extended into a long train. A coronet of beaded lace and satin was arranged over her tulle illusion veil, and she carried a white prayer book, covered with white orchids and bouvardia.

Mrs. Morris Cohen, of Ottawa, sister of the groom, was matron of honour, wearing a pink net gown, over pink taffeta, with matching headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pale blue carnations. The bridesmaids were Misses Ita Hershenovich, Elizabeth Kraminer, Joy Schwartz, and Rona Zabitsky. Bunches of ribbon-tied white chrysanthemums lined the center aisle, with candelabra, palms, and white chrysanthemums in the side aisles, and standards of pink and white chrysanthemums and palms decorating the altar. Wedding music was played by Mrs. M. N. Fineberg, and Miss Queens Hershovich, cousin of the bride, was soloist. For the reception, in Young Israel Centre, palms and bronze and yellow chrysanthemums formed the decoration. Receiving, Mrs. Zabitsky wore a violet-coloured satin gown, with a pink feather and net hat, and a corsage of pink orchids. Mrs. J. A. Leads Prayer For Children Lost In Plane Crash

Advised that the Aero Holland plane bearing child refugees from Tunis to Norway had been found crashed near Oslo with one survivor and 31 dead, members of the executive committee of the Joint Distribution Committee, American Jewish relief agency which chartered the plane, offered a prayer for those lost and issued a plea that continued help be made available to tens of thousands of needy Jewish children still in North African slums, in distressed areas of Europe and in Israel.

Rabbi Jonah B. Wise, vice-chairman of the JDC, and leader of the Central Synagogue, of New York, led the prayer. He said: "We pray for those little ones who came from a land where life is grim, where hunger, disease and wickedness were their constant companions. Their childhood was passed in intolerable misery in the squalid ghettos of North African towns. They were on their way to a better life, to six months of health and plenty in Norway through the great generosity of the Norwegian people, and to a future and home of their own in Israel."

Rabbi Wise added, "The only manner in which we can, in some measure, express our deep sympathy to those who so tragically perished is to remember that we must provide fullest help possible to the thousands of companions they leave behind in North African ghettos, hundreds of whom will go down to equally certain, if less dramatic deaths, in the face of disease and hunger."

Moses A. Leavitt, executive vice-chairman of the JDC, pointed out that the children, after their rehabilitation in Norway, were scheduled to become wards of the Youth Aliyah, the organization which cares for and educates orphan and other Jewish child immigrants in Israel. JDC, which pays the cost of numerous Youth Aliyah children's homes in Europe and North Africa, has also paid the transportation costs of 11,000 Youth Aliyah children to Israel from various European and Moslem lands this year.

The children lost on the Aero Holland plane were being brought to Norway to stay at a special rest center for six months before being transferred to Israel. One plane bearing 29 children landed safely and the youngsters are now in a home near Oslo maintained by the Norwegian government and the Norwegian relief organization "Europe Help". Just previous to the crash the same planes evacuated 130 children to Israel last week who had spent six months in Norway and were considered physically recuperated.

Mr. Leavitt stated that the JDC, which this year will help 240,000 emigrants leave Europe and North Africa by ship and plane, has already moved 42,500 by plane without a previous fatality. Of the group 210,000 have gone, or will go, to Israel.

Court Upsets Awards In Libel Suit

The Illinois Appellate Court held that the admission of anti-Semitic statements in a libel suit resulted in "a grave miscarriage of justice" when it reversed the awarding of damages by the lower court against The Sentinel, a Chicago Jewish weekly newspaper.

The Sentinel was sued by Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, author of "The Red Network," and nine other plaintiffs. They claimed that they were libeled when The Sentinel reproduced a telegram sent in 1947 by Dr. Emmanuel Chapman, chairman of the executive board of the National Committee to Combat Anti-Semitism, to Francis Biddle, then Attorney General.

The telegram asked speedy reinstatement of the petition trial of Mrs. Dilling and other defendants. The petition trial had ended in a mistrial Dec. 7, 1944.

The libel trial against The Sentinel ended in late 1947 with a Chicago Superior Court jury awarding damages to four of the plaintiffs. To Joseph E. McWilliams, of Chicago, was awarded $9,000; to Lawrence Dennis, of New York, $10,000; to E. J. Parker Sage, of Detroit, $5,000; and to George E. Deatherage, of New York, $100.

In the opinion criticizing Superior Judge Donald S. McKinlay's handling of the libel trial, the Appellate Court said:

"In our consideration of this appeal we found it difficult at first to believe the evidence and the arguments form a part of the transcript of the record of a trial in an American court."

"The testimony of plaintiffs McWilliams and Mrs. Dilling consists practically exclusively of wild attacks upon Jews, their religion, and Jewish organizations although there is not the slightest evidence to warrant the attacks."

"In this country," he said, "Jews have known more freedom and opportunity than they have experienced anywhere else in their long, tragic history. Here the basic patterns of freedom of worship, separation of church and state, tolerance of differences are pretty well ingrained in the American character and the American outlook on life."

The Rabbi said that as an American he look forward to an increasing democratization of Jewish life in the U. S. He referred to campaigns for welfare funds among Jews and said that they "have served and continue to serve a useful purpose in this troubled period but they should come under the control of democratically constituted Jewish community councils."

"The defense of Jewish rights, the promotion of Jewish interests should be dealt with nationally, as they are locally, by Jewish organizations with a democratic mass base," he said. "We have learned in American elections that the masses of the people have the majority of the votes and ultimately insist on government and spokesmen who reflect their wishes and interest, and that lesson must not be lost on Jewish leadership."

Shad Polier, a vice-president of the American Jewish Congress, declared that the Congress, disassociating itself from totalitarianism, whether of the right or left, recognized one as physically destructive

MIZRACHI WOMEN VOTE HUGE SUM FOR ISRAEL

The Mizrahi Women's Organization of America, major women's religious-Zionist group in the United States, approved a budget in excess of $1,500,000 for operations in Israel in 1950.

A thousand delegates, representing 50,000 members in 219 chapters in 37 states, approved the budget at the twenty-fourth annual national convention after hearing reports on the need for increased social welfare and child care.

The sum will be used to maintain and expand the organization's 48 current projects in Israel and to establish a new cultural and religious center at Raanana at an estimated cost of $100,000. It will provide schooling for Youth Aliyah children now living at the children's village in Raanana and will also serve as a community and recreational center for refugee families settling in the area.

Allocations of $750,000 for child restoration, $241,000 for education, $55,000 for social services and $65,000 for child welfare were also approved. Earlier, the convention set a 1950 membership goal of 25,000. Mrs. Joseph Landau of Brooklyn, national secretary, reported that 22 new chapters had been organized in the past year.

Mendel Fisher, executive director of the Jewish National Fund, told the delegates that although Israel is in physical possession of the nearly 3,000,000 acres of land owned by Arabs in Israel, the states policy is to purchase it through the fund.

committee's Subcommittee on Civilian Rehabilitation Centers.

In releasing the report, Mr. Baruch announced that his brother, Dr. Herman Baruch, former United States Ambassador to the Netherlands, had been named honorary chairman of the committee.

of the Jewish people; and the other as threatening the survival of Jews.

Dr. Robert S. Gordis, president of the Synagogue Council of America, proposed a program of adult education involving the entire American Jewish community. It called for the convocation, in every community where there are chapters of the American Jewish Congress, of a conference on American Jewish living to detail a plan to bring Jewish culture into every Jewish home.

U. J. A.

delegates from forty-one states assembled for the saving of human lives (through U. J. A. settlement programs) must continue to have priority in American Jewish communal planning, with a few dissenting voices.

As a further effort to assure maximum contributions by communities to the U. J. A., the conference adopted a resolution calling upon each community which has a central fund-raising drive every year, to agree in advance on the proportion of the money collected which will go to the U. J. A. In the past there have been instances where the U. J. A. felt it received an inadequate share of the funds collected through a central campaign.

Other developments at the conference were:

Professor Albert Einstein, speaking to the convention and the country over a National Broadcasting Company network from his home in Princeton, urged continued effort on behalf of Israel and blamed Great Britain for the Arab-Israeli war and subsequent disputes. Were it not for the British government, he said, it would have been possible to achieve an "undivided Palestine in which Jews and Arabs would live as equals, free and in peace."

Leon H. Keyserling, acting chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said that assuming world peace, "nothing is more certain than that over the next five or ten years as a whole the American economy will enjoy prodigious growth in which all major sections, sectors and groups will generously share." He reiterated his view that by 1958 the annual income of the nation may be between ninety and one hundred dollars more than the previous peak established in 1948.

Eddie Jacobson, former business partner and close friend of President Truman, brought the President's greeting to the conference. Magistrate Morris Rothenberg, one of the three national chairmen of the U. J. A., disclosed that a new plan for the establishment of agricultural settlements has been adopted in Israel. In the past, people were trained before being placed on farms. Under the new program, immigrants without training are placed on the farms as part of a community, which includes trained farmers. As a result of the new technique, 30,000 immigrants who might otherwise have been confined to tents and barracks have been settled in permanent homes during the last year.

Dr. Israel Goldstein, former treasurer of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, asserted that Jews in Israel, as well as those waiting to go there, look to the U. J. A. for major aid. Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency, appealed to the conference not to allow local community needs to cause any diminution in large-scale support for Israel.

The Small Still Voice Cries Out

By Rabbi Norman N. Shapiro, of Goei Tzedec Synagogue, Toronto.

Some one once asked Victor Hugo, French novelist and dramatist of the nineteenth century, what he thought of civilization. Hugo said: "It's a good idea, someone ought to start it."

It takes no more than a casual student of trends in world history to notice that civilizations in the past, since earliest antiquity have been short transitory periods in a historical perspective. The majestic civilizations of old, such as Assyria, Babylonia, Persia, Greece and Rome, enjoyed, in the long run of history, only short leases on life because all these civilizations were brought into being by force of arms, and met their final ruin by war. Civilization in the true sense of the word has really not yet started, because it has in the past been based on flimsy foundations.

Regardless of the heights attained, culturally and scientifically, by even the twentieth century societal existence, the world has not yet experienced in practice on earth a way of living which might honestly merit the name civilization, that is, a way of life in which peace is a fundamentally accepted axiom from which people will not deviate, irrespective of the temptation or provocation. Civilization means an orderly way of life in which there is never any resort to arms between nations. A state of the world which deserves the name "civilization", must be based on an unalterable desire and conviction that eternal peace is for the best interests of mankind.

Today, with the word War once again being bandied about indiscriminately, the world stands at the cross-roads of decision. This decision in an Atomic Age, is no longer one of war or peace, but of life or death. On the one hand, humanity has inherited centuries of intermittent warfare, and on the other hand, we are being afforded the last opportunity of starting civilization once again.

Now let people of all nationalities and faiths, Canadians all, who comprise this our Dominion of Canada, look into their hearts, and ask themselves: Are they purged of race prejudices? Do they feel more kindly disposed towards the people of other lands? Are they more willing to regard all men as brothers—as soldiers do when sharing great perils,—and work with them for the common good?

If so, we may have peace and the right to refer to our world as a civilization. But if our hearts still hold the old dislikes, prejudices, suspicions, and intolerance, so do the hearts of others, and war will, God forbid, come again. Mankind will be doomed, and civilization destroyed. This is our last chance.

We Jews, with a prophetic heritage of several thousand years, have always re-echoed, during our bitter and tortuous history, the great cry enunciated by the Prophet Zachariah: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord". We pray that this time the world will heed our still small voice, still and small because it has been ground and crushed by a callous mankind, which has been impervious to its message. The voice, nonetheless, cries out from the depths of despair of a sorely afflicted surviving remnant of Jewry. The Jew looks to the nations of the world, and more particularly, to the peoples of this North American continent for leadership, example, and inspiration in establishing a lasting civilization based on permanent peace.
